Alexandria Ocasio-Cortez, the 29-year-old left-wing socialist who shocked the world by winning a congressional seat in New York's 14th Congressional District on Tuesday, believes that "democracy must be built from the bottom up" and campaigned by focusing on education and healthcare. Ocasio-Cortez was endorsed by Sen. Bernie Sanders, who ran for the Democratic presidential nomination in 2016. Her victory was billed as a potential portent of more left-wing candidates following in Sanders' footsteps. And even President Trump has said that he would like to see Ocasio-Cortez be his vice president. But on the night of her historic election, Ocasio-Cortez admitted that her vote margin over her opponent, Rep. Joe Crowley, was tiny — only about 3,000 votes out of nearly 30,000 cast. There's a saying: You can't polish a turd, and at the moment Ocasio-Cortez looks like a turd that's been polished. She was widely considered a joke candidate by the mainstream media, which ridiculed her campaign and frequently referred to her as "a bartender." The New York Post called her "a left-wing curiosity," The Huffington Post labeled her "Progressive Populist And A Socialist Turncoat," and MSNBC described her as "The Candidate That Never Was." But Ocasio-Cortez proved that she is a talented campaigner, laying the groundwork for future left-wing electoral victories. She rejected the establishment and was an authentic voice for the Democratic 82157476af
